

Working with Jeffrey Atherton on the creation of my website was a truly collaborative experience. This is what I was hoping for when I decided that I needed to have a website, and this is what occurred. Although I had general concepts in mind, Jeffrey was able to coach me and provide suggestions as to what might look best on the website page. As a result ideas were modified. He also provided real creative input, responding to my thinking like a musical accompanist and offering his own point of view. The resulting website truly reflects my life as an artist and will allow me to present myself to the world with confidence and sincerity.
